hot lips

BY BENJAMIN MOORE

"This pink reminds me of those sugary heart candies with messages—the ones you get for Valentine's Day—so it felt perfect for the 'love' theme in this foyer. I painted both the bench and the mirror frame with it and added various pinks and reds so nothing looked too matchy-matchy."

#S-2050-G70Y

BY FINE PAINTS OF EUROPE

"Want to give your white kitchen personality? Paint the floor a surprising shade, like apple green, using an oil-based floor paint with a high-gloss finish. The kitchen had a few separate areas—a breakfast nook, a spot for a desk, a cooking space—and painting the floor a bold color helped it feel like one room."

lilac

BY SERENA & LILY

"In low light—evenings or rainy days, for example—lilac can look more purple than you intended. Once you find a lilac you like, go a shade or two lighter and it will look good all the time. This room was transitioning from a nursery to a little girl's room, and I thought this color would continue to grow with her. In a more adult space, try painting a silver stencil pattern over it."

—Jana Bek, Bek Design, Ann Arbor, MI

sage saga

BY MYTHIC PAINT

"It's hard to find a paint that works with any other colors in a room—earthy or bright—but this taupe shade does; it's a real team player. In this mudroom, it brings out the different hues in the stone floor."

Greenable Material Solutions,
Philadelphia, PA

gibson gold

BY BENJAMIN MOORE

"This laundry room is actually a hallway with no windows, and it was dark and depressing. I chose this acid yellow to make it feel quirky and cheerful. It's my go-to color when I need to add a jolt of fun. But use it sparingly—stick to cabinets, furniture, or a door. It can be overwhelming on four walls."

—Taylor Borsari, Taylor Borsari Inc., Las Vegas, NV

BY SHERWIN-WILLIAMS

"I can't think of a room where this color wouldn't work. Sea glass shades always look good with other beachy colors, but you'd be surprised how well this one goes with apple green, red, and even orange, too. Just don't put anything gray or muddy with it—it's too happy of a color!"

hummingbird green

BY BENJAMIN MOORE

"The experts who named it did a great job summing up this rich emerald paint with a touch of blue. Nothing about it is subtle, though, so test a sample on poster board before committing to the walls. I chose it for my office because it's a really inspiring shade to be surrounded by all day."

—Claire Watkins, Claire Watkins Interior Design, Atlanta, GA
